

One-Time Scout for General Lee Dies at 98 in Soldiers' Home Here

William Champ Stubblefield, whose 98 years were rich with memories of the days when he served as a cavalry scout for General Robert E. Lee in the Virginia campaign and one of the "rebel hosts" who saw the "dan Yankees turn tail and run clear back to Washington" in the First Battle of Manassas, died Tuesday night at the Confederate Soldiers' Home here.

A gentleman of the old south, Mr. Stubblefield had an inexhaustible store of recollections of slave-holding days in his native state of Virginia and the four long, hard years of civil warfare. He entered the war on April 30, 1862, as a private in Company I, sixth Virginia cavalry, and later was made a corporal and transferred to Company A, 24th Virginia battalion.

Mr. Stubblefield fought in the battles of Harper's Ferry and Raccoon Ford and many others before being paroled by the federal forces on May 15, 1865, after the last surrender. During the war he went around the federal lines a number of times on scout duty, and had several horses shot from under him, but escaped without being wounded.

After the war, Mr. Stubblefield went into the building contracting business, and spent a score of years in Florida. He was born in Orange county, Virginia, December 19, 1834. His health was good until Monday, although he was not very active. He entered the home July 8, 1929.

Mr. Stubblefield is survived by two daughters, Mrs. George C. Munger and Mrs. W. E. Hammett; a son, Thomas L. Stubblefield; three grandchildren, William Gould Munger, Nell Farrington and H. F. Munger; one great-grandchild, Mrs. George L. Butler, and two great-grandchildren, Mary Ann Butler and George L. Butler Jr.

Funeral arrangements will be announced later by H. M. Patterson & Son.

Philharmonic Society Scores Hit With Spirited Rendition of 'Martha'

The most tuneful and the most beautiful, in its homely melody, of all the operas, Flotow's "Martha" was given Tuesday night by the Atlanta Philharmonic Society before a large and responsive audience at the Wesley auditorium.

The opera was given in concert form with a large orchestra and chorus. "Martha" was written in the days when life was not complicated, and people, seemingly, sang and danced without care or the thought of consequences. This spirit was felt and admirably carried out by the musicians composing the presentation Tuesday night.

"Tis the Last Rose of Summer" and "None So Rare, None So Fair," the most beautiful and familiar of the opera's arias, were sung with great beauty and feeling by Miss Vivian Bryant, soprano, who took the part of Martha, and Vaughan Ozmer, tenor, as Lionel. Lillian Smith, contralto, Ed Werner, baritone, and Coleman Kimbro, baritone, must also be mentioned for the beauty of their voices and their fine interpretations. Paris Lee, basso, as the sheriff of Richmond, has a voice of great power and beauty.

The orchestra, composed of Atlanta's leading musicians, did splendid work under the direction of Lawrence G. Nilson, director general, and Georg Lindner, director of the orchestra. The chorus was well trained and received an ovation for the finale. One of its hits, "Hurrah for England Beer," was timely.

Several of the scenes of the opera were cut in the concert version. A large audience attended. The performance was one of the most ambitious and enthusiastically received of any given by the society.

Gladys Glad on Beauty

Perfuming was generally considered an art in bygone times. Today it has become an industry. Its first patrons were goddesses. And in a way, its patrons today still are goddesses. For a goddess is, figuratively, a woman perfect in every detail. And no woman can expect to seem goddess-like, or have men worship her, to enslave people with her charms, unless these charms are enhanced by the eternal presence of some delicate, pleasing fragrance.

Now that spring is here, and summer in the offing, the light, bouquet perfumes and fragrant floral scents are resuming their popularity. For such perfumes harmonize much more appropriately with the dainty garb of spring and summer than the heavy, sensuous perfumes. Yet they must be chosen just as carefully and with just as great a regard for type as the heavier, more complicated scents. For perfumes, you know, should be individual, should harmonize with one's personality.

Unfortunately, women do not fall into neat little classes. It would not, therefore, be possible for me to designate the correct perfume for every woman unless I was fully acquainted with her appearance, temperament and personality. But there are several rough rules that may be used as guides in the selection of floral perfume.

The rules to which I refer are by no means iron-bound statutes that must be observed. They are merely suggestions that may help to guide, and that should be amended to suit the individual. Lily of the valley, for instance, bespeaks youthfulness and buoyancy of spirit, and is generally suggested for young brunettes. The elusive and delicate scent of jasmine adds depth to the personality of the ashen and the brown-eyed blonde. The modest violet scent, denoting delicacy and womanly charm, is well suited to the shy, fluffy, fragile type. Heliotrope, which always suggests constancy and faithfulness, is for the old-fashioned, home-loving type. The haunting fragrance of narcissus is considered ideal for the dark, mysterious damsel. Rose is for the athletic girl with her healthful enthusiasms and zest in living. And gardenia is suggested as the predominating odor in the perfume of the warm, hospitable, sweet-natured brunette.

Black Ouster Sought By Rep. McFadden

WASHINGTON, May 23.—(AP)—Representative McFadden, republican, Pennsylvania, took the floor of the house today to impeach Secretary Woodin, of the treasury, and 24 other present and former federal reserve officers, and after a recitation of his 32 charges of "high crimes and misdemeanors" the impeachment resolution was sent to the judiciary committee.

Former Treasury Secretaries Andrew W. Mellon and Ogden G. Mills were among those he charged, "jointly and severally," with "having robbed the United States government and the people of the United States by their theft and sale of the gold reserves of the United States." The names included Eugene R. Black, reserve governor, and Oscar Newton, of Atlanta.

McFadden charged that gold redemption of currency was stopped "for the benefit of private interests, foreign governments, foreign central banks of issue, and the Bank for International Settlements."

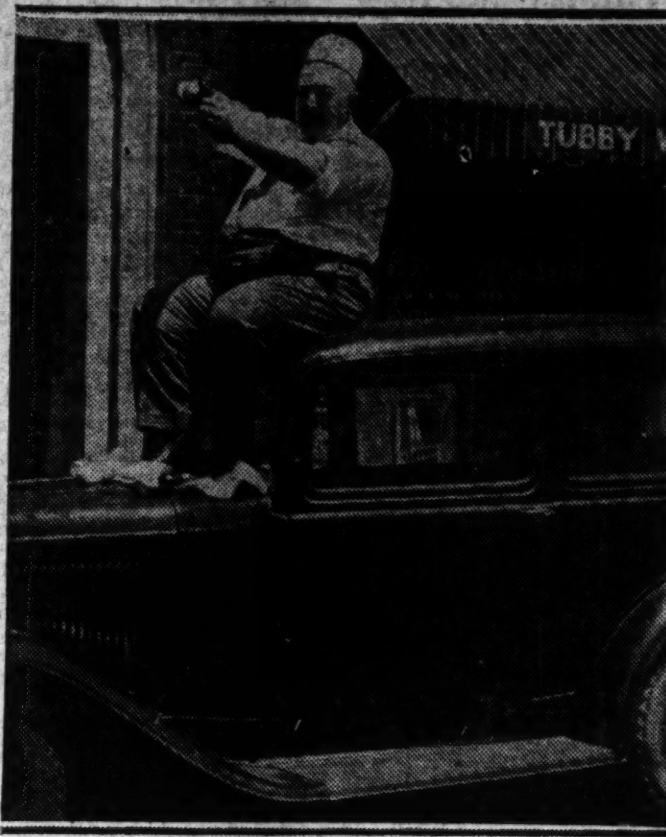

United Repeal Drive By Democrats Looms

WASHINGTON, May 23.—(UP)—The widespread and powerful democratic party machinery soon will be thrown into the administration's effort to effect repeal of the eighteenth amendment, Postmaster-General Farley announced tonight.

Farley, chairman of the democratic national committee, said he soon would instruct the organization responsible for electing President Roosevelt to get out and work to repeal the dry law.

The postmaster-general said the move had the entire support of the president.

500 Men Leave Today For Four C. C. C. Camps

Representing the first big movement of C. C. C. boys to camps, 500 young Georgians will leave Fort McPherson at 6:30 o'clock this morning for the Citizens' Conservation Corps camps in north Georgia at Dahlonega, Robertstown, Tree and Clayton. This fills the four Georgia forestry camps authorized under the control of Fort McPherson, the first in the fourth corps area to complete the job.

As these boys leave this morning, 900 more will be enrolled from South Carolina and by the end of the week there will be 1,400 boys in the conditioning camp. A total of 1,205 have been enrolled and 700 sent out.

Advance detachments of 50 men each with regular army cadres already are at the north Georgia camps to lay out sites, pitch tents, install army kitchens and make the preliminary arrangements to receive the companies.

GOVERNOR STUDIES CONVICT RECORDS

"Forgotten Men" in Prison Camps Will Get Consideration.

Governor Talmadge revealed Tuesday that he is making a special study of "forgotten men" in the state prison camps and as soon as the individual cases are brought to his attention he will give them full consideration.

The governor, while reluctant to discuss his plans, made it known that he will give the same consideration to those prisoners who have served a long time and who are without friends, relatives or funds as to those who have families, friends and attorneys working for them.

There are many men in our prisons who have good records, but have no one to go to bat for them," the governor said. "I have a man working out of my office looking up and into these cases and when a meritorious one is found provision for the release of the prisoner will be made."

The governor will hear a long line of applications for clemency today, chief among them being the appeals of Mrs. Ollie Justice, Atlanta slayer, Leland Harvey, notorious escape artist, and J. L. Hamilton, convicted here more than two years ago on an assault charge.

Mrs. Justice, convicted in 1923 and sentenced to life for the murder of her former sweetheart, L. W. Turner, twice has been refused clemency. The case attracted wide attention all over Georgia ten years ago. The prosecution charged that Mrs. Justice killed Turner when he sought to transfer his affection from her to a younger sister. She pleaded that the killing was accidental.

Harvey has applied for a reduction in the sentences totaling 110 years he received when he pleaded guilty to a daring series of robberies in Bibb county. Harvey recently promised the governor that if the sentence is cut he will deal with other prisoners and make no further attempt to escape.

Hamilton has served a little more than two years of an 18-to-20-year sentence.

The governor revealed Tuesday that he has an agent looking over the files of the prison commission seeking out "forgotten" prisoners, planning to give them wide attention all over the state, even though they are without funds to employ attorneys and without friends to push their applications for them.

MRS. JELKE SAYS HUSBAND BEAT HER

A lot of innocent people and newspaper scandal."

Mr. Doyle has testified he did arrange the luncheon, after talking with Mrs. Jelke, and invited Mr. Jelke, not with the idea of a reconciliation, but to arrange terms of settlement between the estranged couple.

Not only did Mrs. Jelke charge her husband with a series of attacks, cursing and abusive treatment during the nine months of their married life, beginning in December, 1930, but she specifically denied his charge that she had been unfaithful to him with a man known only as "The Major" in Birmingham, Ala., within a few weeks after the marriage, and with Robert White, a New York bachelor, in the latter's apartment on East Fifty-third street in August, last year.

Relating the details of the Paris trip in 1931 she said she did go to the Quatre Arts ball, but only because he asked her to, and told her "not to miss a trick." She said she went, but she did not take a drink and she did not have most of her clothes torn off, as he charged.

"Nobody touched me," she said.

"She denied ever saying, as he charged in his suit, that she would make him get on his knees and offer her any amount of alimony to 'lay off' him. Neither did she ever tell him, she said, that she had not married a man she loved."

"I called him a lecherous old man," she said.

Mrs. Jelke further testified that in London, during a trip immediately after their honeymoon, he wanted his "ex-mistress" to dine with them and "I refused, naturally."

She said that at Palm Beach he slapped her in the face during a backgammon game and that in Chicago she once threatened "in fun" to bite his ear if he did not stop nagging her.

"I did get hold of him," she said, "and he started to pinch me. So I bit his ear hard, but I didn't draw blood."

Replying to his accusation, made during hearing on his petition for divorce last week, that she had associated on board the steamship Bremen, returning from Europe in 1931 with an old friend of hers, she said that the man in question was "Tuffy" Pine. Mr. Pine, she said, was paralyzed from the waist down and laid no sense of humor and she used to walk the deck with him, helping him around. She said she had known him from childhood.

Mrs. Jelke further testified that her husband conspired with his son, F. Bartholomay Jelke, and his daughter-in-law.

The continued "controversies and assaults" made her desperate, she said, because she had tried to please him. She said the manner of life exhausted her and she was frightened of him.

Describing the events leading up to their separation, she said she went to Chicago from Newport on September 6, 1931, because his father was very ill. Later he informed her by telegram that his father had passed the crisis and was better. She said she went to New York and, upon her husband's expressed approval, went to the Atlantic Beach Club and there dined and danced and went swimming. Later, she said, she went to New York and went to dinner and to the theater with Conde Nast, magazine publisher, and another couple.

Mr. Jelke wired her, she said, threatening, accusing her of entertaining undesirable people, whom, she said, she did not even know.

She said Mr. Nast told her to ignore the telegram and send her husband a nice message to make him feel better. She said she did so, suggesting that she might go out to Chicago to join him.

Early in the morning, after the theater party, she said, Mr. Jelke called her on the telephone from Chicago and demanded to know the details of the expenditure of $400 which he had left her when he went away. She said she replied to him: "Any man who can bribe his way for $300,000 into the Racquet Club should forgive his wife spending $400."

She said she later called him and apologized for losing her temper, and he told her he did not care what she did.

Then it was, she said, that she sent him the telegram, stating she could not stand it any longer and she was leaving him. Mutual friends made an effort to dissuade her from this action.

She said she tried to get Mr. Jelke on the phone but he refused to talk with her. Upon receipt of a pleasantly worded telegram from his mother, she went to Chicago and hardly had she got there when they had another argument and he struck her. She said his mother expressed amazement that her son would strike a woman.

He left the apartment for two days and when he returned he was very pleasant and they "made up."

She testified she said to him: "If you love me so much, why do you beat me up?"

He replied, she said, "every man has a right to beat his wife."

"He may have in Prussia, but not here," she said she told him.

When he discovered, she said, that certain people knew he had struck her he was furious and heaped abuse upon her. "I never heard such language in my life," she said.

He ordered her out of the apartment and told her never to come back. She tried to get money from a friend of her father in Chicago, but Mr. Jelke's mother discovered it and gave her $100 for expenses which the younger Mrs. Jelke's aunt, Mrs. Underwood, made her return.

New Willys Car Special Sale Is Announced by Evans Motor

Roy Evans, president of the Evans Motor Company, is putting on what he announces is the largest special sale of new cars—the 1933 Willys—ever attempted in Atlanta.

In today's Constitution he has taken a full-page advertisement in color to announce the details of the event. This is the first time a full page in color was ever used for automobile advertising in a daily newspaper. Special prices on these new cars, with liberal terms, are being given by the Evans Motor Company. Full details showing prices and other advantages appear in the advertisement. The sale will continue until the cars on hand are disposed of. The company anticipates a big response to its offering.

MEMPHIS CONTRACTOR IS KILLED BY TRAIN

MEMPHIS, Tenn., May 23.—(AP)—A. S. Jarratt, 54, a Memphis contractor, was killed today when struck by a passenger train while walking along the Illinois Central tracks near Walla. Miss. Mr. Jarratt and his brother had contracts for building culverts on a new highway near Walla. The body was brought to Memphis.

$1,468 of R. F. C. Funds Left for Distribution

WASHINGTON, May 23.—(AP)—The Reconstruction Corporation today allotted $78,500 of the remaining $80,000 of its emergency relief fund to assist five states over the remainder of May.

This leaves $1,468 of the $300,000 appropriated last summer by congress to be allocated in the next nine days, at the end of which period the corporation relief activities will cease, and will be taken over by the emergency relief administration headed by Harry L. Hopkins. The money allocated today included $5,060 for use in one undesignated political subdivision of Virginia.

BAPTISTS UNITED, FORGET OLD RIFT

Northern and Southern Convention Delegates
Clasp Hands at Joint Meeting.

WASHINGTON, May 23.—(AP)—Enthusiastically singing, "Blest Be the Tie That Binds," Northern and Southern Baptists today joined in a general handshaking to symbolize the bridging of the slavery split of 1845. "Now forget the north and south, you rebels and you Yanks, and shake hands with your neighbors," said Dr. M. E. Dodd, president of the Southern Baptist convention.

And the massed conventions of the two churches filled a huge auditorium with song and with handclaps of good fellowship. Dr. Dodd, for the south, and Dr. C. Oscar Johnson, head of the northern organization, earlier set the example by clasping hands across what Mr. Dodd termed "an imaginary Mason-Dixon line."

Together, also, they visited the White House as a further marking of the historic event, leaving the joint services in charge of past presidents. The Rev. John MacNeill, of Hamilton, Ontario, Canada, speaker for the Northern Baptists, said: "My presence here swings the whole northern continent into this meeting—all imaginary lines have disappeared."

Dr. J. Clyde Turner, of Greensboro, N. C., speaker for the Southern Baptists, called on the united forces of Baptist churches to meet "problems of the world which affect human welfare." He assailed "sweatshops" and called on churches "to speak out on the subject of war."

"Starting women and girls are forced to work for as low as 10 cents a day so greedy proprietors may fill their own coffers with gold," Turner said. "Has the church nothing to say in the face of conditions like these?" The day began with a joint meeting at 7:30 a. m. at the National Baptist Memorial church, continued in a forenoon session at the Washington auditorium, with separate afternoon conferences for men and women, and wound up with supper and a final social gathering.

City Officials to Rush Plans For New Auditorium and Jail

Details of Structures
Sought From Relief Bill
Probably Will Be Sent Roosevelt Himself.

Plans for erection of a $2,000,000 city auditorium and a combination city and county jail will be completed as early as possible and forwarded to Washington officials, probably to President Roosevelt himself. This decision followed a meeting Tuesday afternoon of the citizens' auditorium committee headed by R. R. Otis.

Funds will be sought from the $3,300,000,000 relief bill which provides that the president shall administer the fund as he sees fit. A feature of the meeting was the advice of City Attorney James L. Mayson that the proponents of the two improvements await enactment of the new bill in order to attempt to circumvent charter limitations which would force a bond issue before the city could obtain money.

Although the committee plans to seek to raise the necessary funds from the pending legislation, it decided that plans will be approved as speedily as possible and will be filed with Washington authorities. It was pointed out that since the president is empowered to expend the fund as he deems advisable, they should be filed with him in order that he may give them the direction he sees fit.

Congressman Robert Ramspeck has assured members of the committee that he will co-operate as far as possible to get such funds as may be available. If the tentative plans offered to the committee are consummated, the new auditorium will be located in the block adjacent to the city hall and bounded by Capitol square, Capitol place, Washington street and Trinity avenue. The space is about 400 feet square.

Burge and Stevens, architects, submitted to the committee plans for a new joint jail to be located on the site now occupied by the Southern Bell building at Pryor and Mitchell streets. No estimate of the cost of the project was filed with the committee, and the plans were kept for the files of the committee.

... NO TIME TO WAIT—

SOMEONE IS IN... get the doctor at once—no time to wait... that is when you want a telephone.

You want to talk with a friend across town or in another city—and that is when the telephone serves you well.

After all, life is made up of major and lesser incidents like these—when you need to speak to someone, or they want to call you.

If you try to determine the value of telephone service, a good way it might be measured is by its protection in emergencies when a swift summons must be sent to the doctor, the police, the fire department. Or its value may be summed up in the many little errands it runs for you every day.

But whatever the yardstick, most folks agree the value of telephone service is no great and the cost so reasonable that it really doesn't pay to try to do without it.

Henry Ford
Dearborn, Mich.

May 22, 1933

I suppose that I may claim to be the first Ford Dealer. I not only made cars, but sold them and frequently delivered them myself.

The "drive away" is not new; often I have driven cars from Detroit to towns in Ohio or Indiana or Michigan to make delivery.

There were no good roads in those days, and the people where I drove had never seen a motor car before.

My first really enthusiastic customers were Country Doctors. They were the first to realize the value of dependable transportation to a widely scattered practice.

Even today I occasionally hear from some of those first Ford users.

We had to teach local mechanics how to care for the cars. That is how Ford Service began, which is now found everywhere in the world.

We believed from the beginning that a sale does not complete our transaction with our customer—it creates upon us an obligation to see that our customer's car gives him service. Ford Dealers know their duty to the public in this respect.

I can say of Ford Dealers generally that they have been and are men of character and standing in their communities. Most of them have been with us many years, which indicates that we agree on basic business principles. The Company provides that the methods used to sell the Ford car are consistent with the self-respect of the Dealers who handle it.

The present Ford V-8 is the peak of our 30 years experience.

We have never made a better car. Its eight-cylinder engine is powerful and smooth running. The car is admittedly very good looking and has comfortable riding qualities. It is economical in operation because of advanced engine design and low car weight. It is the fastest, roomiest and most powerful car we have ever built.

MRS. RUTH OWEN AND PARTY ARRIVE IN DANISH CAPITAL

COPENHAGEN, Denmark, May 23.—(AP)—Accompanied by her three children and three grandchildren, Mrs. Ruth Bryan Owen, first woman minister of the United States, landed here today and was given a warm ovation.

Her big task, the new minister to Denmark said, will be to seek reduction of tariff barriers and increase the flow of goods between the United States and the little Scandinavian kingdom.

Count Carl Moltke, former Danish minister to Washington, boarded the steamer Scanstanes on which Mrs. Owen arrived and on behalf of the Danish government welcomed her to the country.

"It is true that most American-Danish problems are of an economic character," Mrs. Owen said on arriving, "but I am accustomed to these problems from my membership on the foreign affairs committee and other congressional work."

"My particular job will be to attempt to relieve economic relations between America and Denmark and get back a normal adjustment, to reduce barriers keeping Danish goods from America and American goods from Denmark."

"I shall try to make our relations much more intimate—no two people are so akin in outlook, thought and sentiment. We even have the same sense of humor."

PANEL EXHAUSTED IN MOONEY TRIAL

Jury Still Incomplete at End of First Day of Hearing.

SAN FRANCISCO, May 23.—(AP) Tom Mooney's long-hoped-for trial on an old indictment in connection with the bombing of the 1916 Preparedness Day parade, got under way today, with the first session devoted to an unsuccessful attempt to get a jury from the initial panel of 46 veniremen.

The prosecution accepted jurors as drawn and intended to present no evidence. The proceedings moved briskly along in the court of Superior Judge Louis H. Ward.

Mooney, florid and quiet, sat with his attorneys, headed by the veteran Frank P. Walsh. Among the spectators was the aged mother, Mary Mooney, and Mooney's wife, Ken.

Mooney had been brought to the county jail here a few days ago from San Quentin, where he has been serving a life sentence for conviction at his first trial for bombing the 1916 parade, which resulted in loss of 10 lives.

Straight through, without any time out for lunch, until the panel had been exhausted was the rigor that Judge Ward applied to the opening day of the trial. Even an intimation of a motion for a lunch recess was denied, and when adjournment was taken for the day 35 of the 46 talesmen in the panel had been excused either for cause or by peremptory challenge. Of the 11 remaining in the jury box, seven were women. A new panel was ordered for tomorrow.

The trial opened after a last-minute legal objection had been swept aside yesterday by the state supreme court, which rejected an application of John O'Gara, law professor and taxpayer, for a writ mandating to compel Judge Ward to dismiss the indictment.

Statement of Morgan Made at Senate Inquiry

WASHINGTON, May 23.—(AP)—Following is the complete text of J. P. Morgan's statement as he read it to the senate investigating committee at the opening of the hearing Tuesday.

"Our desire being to be of use to the committee, I have ventured to frame a brief statement of my views on the subject of the duties and uses of private bankers, which I hope the committee will receive as an outline and, if it so desires, discuss with me or with some of my partners."

"In the first place, what are the differences between the rights and privileges of a private banker and an incorporated bank?"

"As I see it, they consist chiefly in the fact that an incorporated bank receives from the government, federal or state, from which its charter comes, certain privileges, and for those privileges it has to conform to certain laws and regulations of the government, applying only to the incorporated bank's business."

"The private banker has none of these privileges, but as he does not have to conform to any special government regulation, he has a somewhat greater freedom of action."

"The private banker is a member of a profession which has been practiced since the middle ages."

"In the process of time there has grown up a code of professional ethics and customs, on the observance of which depend his reputation, his fortune and his usefulness to the community in which he works."

"Some private bankers, as indeed is the case in some of the other professions, are not observant of this code as they should be, but if, in the exercise of his profession, the private banker disregards this code, which could never be expressed in legislation, but has a force far greater than any law, he will sacrifice his credit."

"Stress on Credit."

"This credit is his most valuable possession; it is the result of years of fair and honorable dealing and, while it may be quickly lost, it can not be restored for a long time, if ever."

"The banker must at all times so conduct himself as to justify the confidence of his clients in him and thus preserve it for his successors."

"If I may be permitted to speak of the firm, of which I am a partner, I should state that at all times the idea of doing only first-class business, and that in a first-class way, has been before our minds."

"We have never been satisfied with simply keeping within the law, but have constantly sought so to act that we might fully observe the professional code and so maintain the credit and reputation which has been handed down to us from our predecessors in the firm."

"Since we have no more power of knowing the future than any other men, we have made many mistakes (who has not during the past five years?) but our mistakes have been errors of judgment and not of principle."

"Another most important duty of the private banker is to take special care that his banking position is regarded by his depositors as at all times sufficiently strong, knowing as he does that none of the aids provided by the government for incorporated banks, such as the federal reserve system or the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, are at his disposal."

"The private banker has at least one other duty: He must be ready and willing to give disinterested advice to his clients to the best of his ability. If he feels unable to give this advice without referring to his own interests he must frankly say so."

"The belief in the integrity of his advice is a great part of the credit of which I have spoken above, as being the best possession of any banker."

"So far as to the duties, I will now pass on to the uses of private bankers."

Private Banking Uses.

"These seem to me to be closely related to the fact that, as they are risking their own money and doing their own work, they may properly undertake certain responsibilities and

Glass Defends Morgan From Pecora's Thrusts

WASHINGTON, May 23.—(UP)—

Senator Carter Glass, possessor of the sharpest tongue in the senate, twice came to the defense of J. P. Morgan on the witness stand today when he felt the questioning was too relentless.

"I see no reason for badgering Mr. Morgan," he snapped at Senator Investigator Pecora.

Later, when Pecora was pursuing a steady and persistent interrogation of the New York banker on the question of loans made which were not backed by sufficient collateral, Glass again intervened.

"In the interests of justice," Morgan said gratefully in turning toward Glass, "I am much obliged to you."

"Continuing Obligation."

"If he makes a public sale and puts his own name at the foot of the prospectus, he has a continuing obligation of the strongest kind to see, so far as he can, that nothing is done which will interfere with the full carrying out of the contract with the holders of the securities."

"To this end the private banker can serve well, since, as he has at stake not only his clients' interest but his own reputation, he is likely to be especially careful."

"Capital Essential."

"We must not lose sight of the fact that the steady supply of capital for industry is an essential of our system, and that anything which may hinder the flow of such a supply, or needlessly diminish the confidence of the investors in the safety of their investments, is undesirable."

"At the present moment, owing to the destruction of confidence in this time of depression, there is no flow of capital into industries, and consequently no investment possible for the savings of the people which are turned over daily to savings banks and insurance companies to be invested."

"Just at present these are the only sources from which industry can obtain its needed capital, as the savings of the incomes of private persons have been so greatly reduced by the depression, and by the extreme weight of taxation on incomes and estates; and as the depression, for the first time, as far as I know, in the history of the world, is so widespread, no country can lend money in any other way."

"Though, at the present time, there is no demand for capital for industry, this condition will pass, and we should not by any means force the organization for distribution of securities out of business, lest, when there is again a legitimate demand for capital, it be found that the machinery of distribution has disappeared."

"No private banker, where he is (as we are) a wholesale merchant of securities or whether he deals directly with the ultimate investor, could continue in the business if he had no other sort of business to fall back on in such times as the present."

Question of Deposits.

"The question has been raised whether a private banker should be permitted to accept deposits. The laws of the state of New York very wisely, as I think, and under careful restrictions, have sanctioned the practice, which the management of an incorporated bank might not be justified in dealing with."

"Subject to the paramount need of keeping their banking position toward their depositors sound and liquid, they have a very prompt and effective way assist in the development of the industries and productions of this largely industrialized world."

"They can also come to the aid of a general situation, or of their friends and clients, in times of panic and distress, to an extent that an incorporated bank might well feel it had no right to do with its stockholders' money."

"Another very important use of the private banker is to serve as a channel whereby industry may be provided with capital to meet its needs for expansion and development."

"To this end the private banker can serve well, since, as he has at stake not only his clients' interest but his own reputation, he is likely to be especially careful."

"Must Serve Friends."

"Therefore, if friends in whom we have confidence ask us to serve them by advising with them, we are bound to give them the best advice we can, and to prevent anyone from discussing problems with and seeking advice from, friends in whose judgment he has a confidence which is the result of years of experience and operation, and which we need any need for legislation which makes such consultation more difficult."

"The private banker is also useful in offering a sort of neutral territory where, at times, the management of the incorporated banks may meet and discuss the general problems without rivalry or competition."

"I believe if you were to ask the heads of all the great banks of New York who have had experience of both good and bad times, you would be assured that the private bankers, by offering that neutral ground, have served a very useful purpose, and would have been forced out of business by law, either state or federal."

"So sum up, I state without hesitation that I consider the private banker a national asset and not a national danger."

"As to the theory that he may be too powerful, it must be remembered that any power which he has comes, not from the confidence of people in his character and credit, but that that power, having no force to back it, would disappear if people thought that the character had changed or the credit had diminished."

"I believe that the respect and esteem of the community."

Full Text of Questions And Morgan's Answers

By the Associated Press.

Following is the full report of J. P. Morgan's testimony.

"Would you like to make a preliminary statement?" asked Fletcher, while silence fell.

Answering the first question from Pecora, Morgan gave his residence and business address and said he was a member of the firm of J. P. Morgan & Co. in New York; Drexel & Co., a Philadelphia affiliate, and two houses abroad, Morgan & Co. in Paris, and Morgan, Grenfell & Co., in London.

"The business of J. P. Morgan & Co. was founded in 1844."

"We conduct a general banking business such as is conducted under the laws of the state for a private bank," the witness said.

"We take deposits when they are offered, we take orders which we have executed on the stock exchange."

But he added, "the investment business is not the largest part of our business."

"How many members has your firm?" he was asked.

"I think it's 20."

"Where they always that many?"

"Oh, no, we added them as we needed them."

"How long has the firm been constituted as now exists?"

"Since January 2, 1932," Morgan said, on a prompting from Davis.

Pecora asked for a copy of the articles of partnership.

"They are not here," Morgan replied.

"There was a negative answer when the counsel asked whether there was a copy available."

Pecora said he thought a copy of the articles was essential to the hearing.

Dispute Over Question.

Davis objected, "the partners are all here."

"It is a purely private matter and has no relevancy to this hearing," Davis said.

"There was an exchange with committee members participating and Pecora said the articles of partnership would show, he felt, such things as the 'question of the relationship between the partners to the profits, losses, and capital invested in this firm.'"

Davis insisted that all the partners were liable for liabilities under the partnership.

Pecora contended the articles of partnership were essential to the hearing, but Senator Couzens asked that this matter be referred to a separate session and the question was dropped for the time.

Senator Steiwer, republican, Oregon, asked Pecora what phase of the partnership was pertinent to the partnership information.

"It is a question of liability of this firm which accepts deposits from the public," Pecora replied, but he did not press the matter.

Asked if his formal statement represented his own views, Morgan replied that it did, but had been read by his partners and none dissented.

"Does it express the views of all private bankers?" asked Couzens.

"I can speak only for myself," Morgan said.

"I wanted to make clear that it doesn't stand as a statement for all private bankers," Couzens commented.

"Is the business departmentalized among the members," Pecora asked.

"Not in any formal way," Morgan replied, amplifying in reply to further questions that "a subject comes up and we have somebody who knows more about it, he handles it."

"What is assigned to you?"

"Nothing. I used to be very active, but I found I had some very good partners and I leave more and more to my partners. I have a general supervision and accept full responsibility."

"Do you want the committee to understand that you have retired," Pecora asked?

"Oh, no," Morgan said, but when a committee member suggested he nearly had reached retirement age, he replied with a chuckle, "almost."

Partners Meet Daily.

Gore, democrat, Oklahoma, asked the amount of deposits of Morgan company.

"In the two houses, $250,000,000," Morgan said.

He said Thomas W. Lamont handled most of the firms foreign security issues.

Pecora asked how often the partners met.

"Every week-day except Saturday."

"Is there any written record or minutes?"

"Only the names of those who attended."

"There is no record of the deliberations or conclusions?"

"None."

Morgan said it was decided not to keep minutes when the partners' "about 20 years ago," began their daily meetings.

"It is not the same as the board of a corporation," Morgan explained in answer to a question by Pecora.

"They have to vote, we don't."

"Is that the reason you keep no minutes," Pecora inquired.

"So far as I know."

Pecora then wanted to know how they decided what had happened at meetings "months back in the event you want to know."

"We just depend upon our recollection," Morgan said.

"You find the memories of the partners uniformly good?"

"Yes," the banker said with a smile. Then followed questions about the parent firm affiliate, Drexel & Co., in Philadelphia.

Morgan was answering a series of questions along this line, asserting that the two were really "one business operated in different places" when Senator Glass, democrat, Virginia, interrupted.

"I want to know," he asked sharply, "whether the committee counsel has told the members of the subcommittee what he intends to bring out by this type of question. What does he intend to prove?"

Pecora answered that the questions about the Philadelphia firm were for the record and that he had told Chairman Fletcher in a general way what he intended to do.

A number of questions were asked regarding the relationship of the Morgan house in New York and Drexel & Co. in Philadelphia. George Whitney answered them.

"There are 20 partners of Morgan & Co. and Drexel & Co.," he said. "Their liabilities are complete and undivided."

Separate on Books.

"In Philadelphia there are 'four partners, who are liable for Drexel & Co., but have no connection with Morgan & Co.'"

"If J. P. Morgan were sued," asked Gore, "would Drexel & Co. be liable?"

"The five resident partners of Morgan & Co. would be liable but the four Drexel partners would not," Whitney said, "they are liable only for Drexel & Co.'"

"Is there a separate capitalization for Drexel & Co.?" asked Adams, democrat, Colorado.

"It is separate on the books," Whitney said.

"What was the aggregate amount of deposit accounts at the end of your last fiscal year," asked Pecora.

"On December 31, 1932, they were $340,000,000," Morgan said, giving a figure nearly $100,000,000 above his first reply on this question.

"What was the capital?"

"The net worth of the company answers for equity," Morgan said.

"That was $55,194,000," he said.

"Does this determine the policies of your London office?" Pecora asked.

"Chiefly the London partners," Morgan said. "You see I lived over there and worked over there for eight years, so I know those men. There's not much room for misunderstanding."

"You are liable for their losses?"

"I suppose so. The same is true of Drexel & Co. and ourselves."

Morgan said in reply to questions that the balance sheet given the committee listed market values of securities, not purchase values.

"Was a statement of your financial condition made up for the calendar year 1930?" Pecora asked.

"There wasn't one," Morgan replied.

As the question of the "loss" came up, Glass interposed again to say that Morgan had said he knew "nothing about this."

"Does this witness have some knowledge of a valuation of securities on January 2, 1931?" asked Pecora.

"I have no knowledge," Morgan replied.

"Were the assets of the firm valued at the end of 1930 at market price or at cost?"

"They were not valued as of that date."

Glass interrupted to say that a provision in the bill stipulated that private banks could not receive deposits unless they separated investment and commercial banking.

"Who signed the 1930 tax return?"

"I have no doubt I did."

"Did you sign for January 1 and January 2?"

"I don't know, I don't know."

"Didn't examiners go over them?" asked Glass.

"Yes," Morgan said.

"Believe 1931 now is being examined."

"They also examined Charles E. Mitchell," put in Couzens.

"That is an implication," Glass interposed.

"I don't mean any implication," Couzens said, "but I don't want to curtail this examination."

"The witness has answered 'no' over and over," Glass shouted, pounding the table. "I want to know the direction of this examination. As a member of this committee, I have the right to ask questions and make observations and I intend to exercise that right."

"So do I," Couzens said quietly.

"Glass persisted. 'I don't know any more about my income tax than the man in the moon. I guess I'm guilty. I'm not implying any guilt but I don't see why this wire should be treated differently from any other just because he's Mr. Morgan.' Couzens said."

Pecora had asked if the Morgan firm filed an income tax statement for the part of the calendar year from January 1 to June 30 and a separate return from July 1 to December 31.

"I don't know anything about the income tax personally," Morgan replied.

"You stated a balance sheet was not taken as of the end of the calendar year 1930 because a new partner came in on January 2, 1931," Pecora said.

"Yes," Morgan said.

"Do you know your firm made a return for the two-day period between January 1 and January 2, 1931?"

"Probably, but I don't know it," Morgan replied.

Pecora then was told by Morgan that he did not know that his firm had made a deduction of $21,071,000 on a return covering the January 1 and 2 period of 1931.

This line of questioning was then protested by Davis and Senator Glass, ignoring this, Pecora asked:

"Did the firm do business for January 1 and January 2 which resulted in considerable losses?"

"There was no loss at that time, but the loss was taken then," Morgan replied.

"Have you no knowledge of this matter?" Pecora resumed.

Glass again interposed to object to the "badgering of this witness."

"I have no desire to badger," Pecora answered. "I think I have to right to develop information."

At the afternoon session, Pecora asked Morgan:

"Is it within your knowledge that the aggregate amount of income tax paid in 1930 by your company and Drexel & Co. was between $47,000 and $48,000?"

"I don't know," was the reply.

"Is it in your knowledge that the aggregate paid for the year 1931 was zero?"

"I don't know."

Pecora asked if the First Security Company of New York city, in which Morgan was listed as a director, was an affiliate of the First National bank of New York city.

Morgan replied it was.

"Do your members attend meetings of corporations in which they serve?"

"With as much regularity as they can."

"Your business is of considerable magnitude?"

"Yes."

"Do you attend the meetings of boards on which you are a director?"

"Whenever I possibly can. I am absent from New York about four months of the year. The others aren't absent that much."

Morgan replied affirmatively when asked if affairs of corporations on which partners were directors were sometimes discussed at the daily meetings of the firm.

From the income tax matters, Pecora turned to a series of questions the gist of which was whether a partner of the Morgan firm who was a director of a corporation might have to take a position disadvantageous to one or the other.

Morgan smilingly shook his head, after a series of "no, no, no."

Denies Conflict of Interests.

"Your partners in such instances," Pecora said, "owe a duty to your firm and they have a selfish interest in its profits."

"I suppose so," Morgan said.

"He owes a duty to the corporation, too," Pecora said.

"Yes."

"Well, in cases where your firm did the financing for this corporation,"

Nazi Riot Is Quelled By Military in Austria

ZELTWEG, STYRIA, Austria, May 23.—(UP)—A riot of 2,000 Nazis was suppressed tonight by a bayonet charge by gendarmes. The Nazis were protesting the police ban on a showing of a film about Chancellor Adolf Hitler of Germany. Military aid was rushed for the gendarmes, and the soldiers occupied public buildings and the main streets.

NO INCOME TAX PAID BY MORGAN

Startling Disclosures Are Made by Senate Committee Investigation.

entry although the committee itself will have access to this information. Through a sultry day, with committee room and corridors outside packed by crowds seeking a glimpse of the tall financial figure whose name is known around the world, Pecora led the inquiry into all the corners of the Morgan empire in an effort to show its financial control.

167 Corporations.

It was disclosed that J. P. Morgan and Company exercises control through directorships, on 167 industrial corporations in all parts of the country; that it controls partially 18 banks; that 52 corporations including the American Car and Foundry Company, of which Secretary of Treasury Woodin formerly was president and all doing an interstate business, at one time kept a daily balance of a million dollars on deposit with Morgan and Company.

On December 31, 1932, the company had deposits totaling $340,000,000, capital of $53,194,000; $35,800,000 in cash; $7,500,000 in call loans and $224,000,000 in securities. Its books are subject to no inspection by any authority, state or federal, though it regularly submits statements to the New York Federal Reserve bank largely as a guide in disposing of its commercial paper.

During the day, Senator Glass hotly confronted some of the lines of inquiry followed by Pecora, including the income tax revelations. His objections precipitated a personal exchange with Senator James Couzens, multi-millionaire Michigan republican senator. Couzens claimed there should be no partiality shown since the income tax records of Charles E. Mitchell, former president National City bank, had been opened to the committee.

Morgan, who was on the stand nearly four hours and will resume again tomorrow, was an amiable and willing witness until pressed about his income taxes. He then became slightly annoyed at Pecora's insistent inquiries, twisting a handkerchief in his big hand.

Center of Attention.

He was the center of attention when he strode into the committee room, a tall, impressive figure dressed in a pinstriped suit and wearing an old-fashioned high stiff collar.

There was a hush over the committee room when Pecora suddenly opened his inquiry into Morgan's income tax payments. The financier said he was unable to supply full information of the $21,071,862 loss at the time of reorganization. He suggested that Keyes be called since he had handled the matter. Glass bitterly and angrily protested when Pecora persisted in questioning Morgan on this point saying it was very evident Morgan knew nothing about the income taxes.

It was early in the afternoon session when Morgan revealed to a startled committee room that he had paid no income taxes for the last three years. First asked about 1930, he

On last December 31, deposits were listed at $340,000,000.

Keyes disclosed that the company had shown a loss of $817,588 in the last half of 1930, during which year it had made two tax returns due to a reorganization. Between $3,000,000 and $4,000,000 of the $21,071,862 loss was used to offset losses for the last half of 1932, but none of the other has been used.

Senator James F. Burnes, democrat, South Carolina, by a persistent line of inquiry, brought out that the losses could be offset against possible gains in 1933 and thus the company would benefit from the reorganization which entrance of S. Parker Gilbert on January 2, 1932, had made possible.

Pecora insisted that Gilbert could have been admitted on December 31, 1930, instead of three days later and that the company could have shown the same losses on that day. Keyes agreed. But, the stocky little investigator persisted, the losses then could not have been spread over a year.

The Morgan manager said that an internal revenue bureau agent had, during the last month, been going over their accounts. This, he said, was normal procedure. He asked what was the purpose of the investigation he replied that it was to review the January 2, 1931, reorganization to see whether the losses could be allowed as planned.

While the company will profit if gains are made now under this arrangement, the company paid large income taxes in prosperous years, Keyes testified.

Pecora inserted in the record a report by Newell G. Shield, internal revenue agent, in which Shield explained that the mid-year reorganization and tax returns in 1930 was the "first deviation" from the usual yearly reorganizations of the Morgan company.

He said that if a new company had been organized at the end of 1930 instead of several days later, "the loss of 1930 would have been so large that it would have been improbable that the statutory loss could have been absorbed by the income of two succeeding years."

But under the January 2 reorganization the company can carry the losses forward to cover 1933 income.

Keyes professed ignorance of this report and said he could not accept some of Shield's assumptions.

Earlier, Pecora produced a return of the corporation Newbold with the notation that it had been filed from the office of J. P. Morgan.

Return Correct.

"It has been our experience that such returns are always correct," the notation said. It was signed by C. M. Sheppard, an internal revenue examiner. "No field examination necessary" was stamped on the face of the return.

Pecora devoted considerable time in an effort to show the domination of corporations all over the country through representation on directorships of concern which at the same time are financed by the Morgan bank. He visualized conflicts in certain cases which he held would be resolved in favor of Morgan & Company because of this double interest.

"In those cases it becomes important to do financing on terms profitable to you, doesn't it?" Pecora inquired.

The financier replied that the director must take a position for the best interests of both, saying they "need not necessarily conflict."

ing it the sole right to handle securities issues.

On the contrary, he said, corporations in which his partners were directors were often financed through other houses.

"When the Steel Corporation was formed," Morgan said, "my father said it would have a strong board of directors, and that as it grew, inevitably would have to do business with some of the directors. So he wrote into the by-laws that the directors could by a majority vote—the interested member not voting—do such business."

Morgan insisted that the interests of a corporation with which his firm did business and the interests of the firm itself were not in conflict.

"Your firm lends to individuals at times, does it not?" Pecora asked.

"Yes, sometimes," Morgan replied.

"Were any loans, personal loans, made to officers and directors of chartered banks?"

"Yes."

Pecora then began to read a list into the record.

Davis raised a question about them. With that the committee voted to go into executive session to decide whether the list should be made public.

It quickly agreed to postpone a decision, however, for the purpose of pursuing income tax features of the inquiry.

Mrs. Carl Ireland, 32, of Portland, Ind., was burned to death when she tried to carry a blazing stove from the house to save her three children. The fire started when the stove exploded.

were dangerous and defective, Mr. Somers said that one of the steps gave way under her, causing injuries. When the society showed that both husband and wife were on the step at the same time, and that each weighed 225 pounds, the judge dismissed the case.

A Partnership in Understanding

Two men have just had a talk—one, a man who has long considered himself a small depositor; the other a "Friendly" Fulton Official—the one, troubled with a problem, seeks advice—hesitates. The other, to discuss the matter with him at length, to advise—to aid.

It's 4:50 p. m. No longer does the small depositor feel that the size of his account should cause him to hesitate—a partnership in understanding has been formed—a regular function of "Friendly" Fulton service is more clearly understood.

Pecora inquired, "he (the director) would have to take a position on that fibbing?" "I can't see the best interests of both at the same time, can he?"

Morgan said emphatically that "he could."

"You would want to help finance to the best advantage of both," he said. "You can't go on with any business if one side only makes money."

Pecora pursued this line for several minutes, but Morgan insisted that there need be no conflict.

Morgan said the profit to his firm in financing was by no means the only consideration, and that Morgan & Co. had no financial contracts gir-

BANK REFORM BILL INSURING DEPOSITS PASSED BY HOUSE

posit insurance fund that might reach $2,000,000,000. This money would be used to insure deposits in federal reserve and state banks that could obtain certificates of solvency from state officials and satisfy the board that administered the fund.

Deposits would be insured on this basis: 100 per cent of amounts up to $10,000, 75 per cent of amounts between $10,000 and $50,000, and 50 per cent of amounts over $50,000. This every depositor would be insured safety for at least $10,000.

This section of the bill would not become effective for a year, unless the president before then proclaims it in operation.

Before he can issue that proclamation, however, preliminary examinations of state banks that ask the protection of the fund must be completed.

To satisfy critics of the measure, who said it was designed to force state banks out of business, since they are not automatically made insurance-fund participants as are federal reserve members, the house adopted an amendment by Representative Goldsborough, democrat, Maryland, saying that there should be no "discrimination" against state banks.

Another provision was inserted on motion of Representative Beedy, republican Maine, to make it clear that the insurance section does not apply to banks already closed.

Besides these features, the bill also requires federal reserve member banks to divorce themselves completely from security affiliates; lets the federal reserve board supervise negotiations between reserve banks and foreigners; relieves national bank stockholders from double liability if their bank closes; forbids an officer of a reserve member bank to borrow from his bank; prohibits any national, reserve or member bank or employee from doing insurance business.

Just before the final vote, Goldsborough, ranking democrat on the house banking committee, told the house:

"This bill has been carefully worked out in conferences between everybody from the president down. If passed, it will be put into effect, deposit insurance and all, at an early date, possibly before July 1.

Security Publicity Approved by Senate

WASHINGTON, May 23.—(P)—Publicity as a protective shield for investors in securities was given final congressional approval today with the adoption by the senate of the conference report on President Roosevelt's securities bill.

The bill, which will require securities to be registered with the federal trade commission, now goes to the White House.

The final draft carried an amendment by Senator Johnson, republican, California, creating a corporation to help investors in defaulted foreign bonds to recover some of their money. The corporation would be set up upon the order of the president.

The measure provides that before any securities in the future can be sold or advertised in interstate commerce, they must be registered with the trade commission and the full light of publicity turned upon the details of their issuance.

Violators will be subject to a fine of not more than $5,000 or a five years' imprisonment, or both.

GEORGIANS SEEK TO AID DAIRYMEN

Producers Visit Washington, Ask Help in Stabilizing Milk Prices.

WASHINGTON, May 23.—(P)—An effort was started today to solve price and production problems relating to fluid milk and cream produced in the Atlanta territory under the trade agreement provisions of the new farm adjustment act.

A group of producers and processors headed by Fred T. Bridges, assistant Georgia commissioner of agriculture, visited the department of agriculture today to inquire into the possibilities of using the agreement method to improve returns to farmers and stabilize prices.

It was decided that Bridges would head a committee to work out details of a comprehensive plan to be offered later for consideration by Secretary Wallace and George N. Peek, chief administrator. Representatives of the Georgia Milk Producers' Confederation and the Georgia Pure Milk League who attended today's conference will be represented on the committee.

The group said that Atlanta requires about 20,000 gallons of milk daily and that grade A requirements is the commonly accepted standard. Producers are now receiving an average of 13-12 cents a gallon, f.o.b. Atlanta, less a transportation charge of about 3-12 cents a gallon, based on 4 per cent butter fat with 4-cent differentials where the fat content is higher or lower. The group said that Atlanta receives its milk from a wide area some of the cream and condensed milk for the manufacture of ice cream being shipped from points in Alabama and Tennessee.

The Georgia Pure Milk League represents producers and distributors handling 100 per cent raw milk. It has about 150 members. There are about 150 members of the independent distributor group who have together about 7,000 cows.

The Georgia Milk Producers' Confederation, recently incorporated as a bargaining organization with plans for other direct market activities has a membership of 200 producers who sell largely to pasteurizing plants in Atlanta from herds containing about 7,000 cows. Another group of independent dairymen ship to the Atlanta market the production of about 2,000 cows.

The group said that its goal was the "development of a sounder and more substantial marketing system that would afford ample protection to producers and give assurance that consumers would continue to receive pure milk at fair prices."

NEW HAVEN, Conn., May 23.—(P)—Luke L. Finley, of Memphis, Tenn., today was elected to the editorial board of the Yale Law School Journal. An election to the board is regarded as a leading honor in the school. Frank B. Strong, of Lawrence, was elected editor-in-chief.

FRENCH ADVOCATE WORLD ARMS POOL FOR LEAGUE'S USE

ill the United States and Great Britain stabilized their currencies.

"We have called the attention of our friends in the United States and Great Britain," M. Bonnet said, "to the inconvenience resulting from the instability of the pound and the dollar if a rapid stabilization of their monies is not made."

"We are going to the world economic conference with the will to collaborate in the work, but we believe profoundly that if the American and English currencies remain unstable it would be impossible to talk auspiciously at London."

"As long as the common measure of business remains unstable and uncertain, it is impossible to lay the foundation of a better world economy."

The finance minister's views upon stabilization of the American dollar and the British pound were outlined earlier today at a cabinet meeting.

French financial quarters regard stabilization of the American and British currencies as necessary for the revival of business.

BRITISH SHARE VIEWS VOICED BY ROOSEVELT

LONDON, May 23.—(P)—The British government entirely shares President Roosevelt's views that "the future happiness and prosperity of the world" depend upon the successful outcome of the world economic and disarmament conferences, it said today in replying to the American president's world appeal.

Great Britain, the reply said, is all the more encouraged "because the president places as the first step of the program adoption of the draft disarmament convention presented at Geneva by Prime Minister MacDonald March 16."

If a disarmament agreement can be reached, the reply to President Roosevelt said, the result will be restoration of confidence among the nations of the world and thus the best preparation will be made for the vital decisions which the world economic conference will be called upon to take."

DALADIER WELL PLEASED

PARIS, May 23.—(P)—President Roosevelt's disarmament policy, as presented at Geneva yesterday by Norman H. Davis, plenipotentiary for the United States, was well received by the French cabinet today, it was said.

The French cabinet today, in deciding upon the early discussion of security at Geneva, recognized that Mr. Roosevelt had demonstrated an understanding of European problems.

Some agreement on the security question essential to quiet French fears before disarmament can be consented to, it was said.

FRENCH PROPOSAL MEETS
COOL U. S. RECEPTION

WASHINGTON, May 23.—(P)—Official Washington carefully evaluated tonight a spectacular French proposal that all offensive arms be pooled for use against aggressor nations and the opinion crystallized rapidly that American participation was hardly possible.

Meanwhile, Viscount Ishii and an official delegation from Japan arrived to discuss world economics with President Roosevelt. From them came reassuring statements that Japan intends soon to withdraw her forces from the Peking-Tientsin area.

However, Ishii could not concur in Mr. Roosevelt's definition of an aggressor state as one whose troops are found on alien soil in violation of treaties. Observers had been quick to apply the definition to the position of the Japanese army in China.

SAVANNAH, Ga., May 23.—(P)—Abner G. Jackson, 47-year-old shipper man, died here tonight from the effects of a pistol wound in the head. He was found wounded in the basement of the cotton exchange this afternoon, with a pistol at his side, and succumbed about six and a half hours later. He was a member of the South Atlantic Steamship Line, of Savannah.

He was born in Nashville, Tenn., in 1886, and is survived by his widow, Mrs. Mamie S. Jackson; two daughters, Mrs. E. D. Delaney, of New York city, and Mrs. H. C. Morrison, of Savannah; his mother, Mrs. A. G. Jackson St., of Augusta; and three sisters, Mrs. Albert Walden, Atlanta, and Mrs. Charles Bell and Miss Louis Jackson, both of Augusta. Mr. Jackson was a member of St. John's Methodist church at Augusta. Funeral arrangements have not been completed.

Two Are Indicted In Ridley Inquiry

NEW YORK, May 23.—(P)—Two young accountants, Arthur J. Hoffman and George Goodman, accused of swindling $210,000 from Edward A. Ridley, slain eccentric millionaire, were indicted today on charges of grand larceny.

Meanwhile, the police, delving into the 88-year-old real estate operator's complex affairs, said they discovered that his slain secretary, Lee Weinstein, accomplice of the accountants, had exacted a 10 per cent "cut" on legitimate repairs to Ridley's extensive properties.

Weinstein, pictured by the accountants as the "master mind" in their scheme to swindle Ridley, was estimated to have received approximately $150,000 on annual repairs to Ridley's $15,000 yearly on annual repairs to his properties.

Hoffman and Goodman were indicted after they admitted forming three dummy corporations to submit bills for repairs, which Weinstein induced Ridley to pay. The repairs, they said, were never made.

Bonus Camp Closed;
Vets Go to Forests

WASHINGTON, May 23.—(P)—The 1933 bonus camp in Washington was evacuated peacefully tonight with 2,372 of the veterans en route to the reforestation camps.

John H. Hines, veterans administrator, reported to President Roosevelt today that the camp at Fort Hunt had been closed.

One thousand of the men entered the conditioning camp at Fort Humphrey, Va., preparatory to proceeding to reforestation camps. Another 1,200 left by boat and train for Langley Field, Virginia, to enter the reconditioning camp there. Previously 172 others had gone to this camp.

Of the remaining veterans, 400 were sent home by the train.

32-Ship Navy Program Advocated by Swanson

WASHINGTON, May 23.—(P)—Secretary Swanson tonight sought the support of the nation for a 32-ship naval construction program, declaring the American navy is drifting into "a state of obsolescence" and that unless it is made first-class "it is a useless expense."

The navy secretary, in an address, quoted the words of the late Admiral William M. Moffett, who was lost on the Akron, that "in time of war the second best navy was no better than the second best hand in a poker game."

Swanson declared that he was not a "big navy man" in the sense that he sought for the navy the most that he could "induce congress to appropriate."

"That is not my attitude," he asserted, "nor is it the attitude of the navy. I would not increase the navy to the extent of a single rowboat beyond what a sane appreciation of our necessities involves."

SOUTH CAROLINA LIONS

"Terror Aboard" Brings
Thriller to Georgia

John Halliday, Charlie Ruggles, Neil Hamilton, Shirley Grey, Verree Teasdale and Jack LaRue play leading roles in "Terror Aboard," nautical thriller film, which opens at the Georgia today. The picture centers around the attempt of a friend to wipe out in its entirety the passenger list and crew of a luxurious yacht while it is steaming through the Pacific, bound for Australia.

Action of the film gets under way when a freighter discovers the yacht, sailing an erratic course through the ocean, apparently deserted, though its motors are running wide open. The freighter sends a party on board and the mate swings to the deck first. He never returns. When the rest of the party climb aboard, they find him dead. Other corpses are strewn throughout the vessel; a woman, frozen to death, though the climate is tropical; a man hanging dead in a closet, and others.

Then the camera swings back a few days to show the plot developing and working itself out, striking down one person after the other aboard the vessel; avoiding only one woman. Each death is more horrible, more gruesome, than the last. The climax is precipitated by the arrival on the scene of an aviator and is brought to a head when the boarding party from the freighter appears.

Added attractions on this program at the Georgia, which is cooled by refrigeration, include a Mack Sennett comedy, Boscoe cartoon and new reel, James Cagney in "Pictur Snatcher" arrives at the Georgia for a week's engagement starting Saturday.

He flips old suspenders to show why fresh Gulf gas is better

WHEN gas gets old—STALE—something goes out of it that never returns. It gives less power on hills—less mileage on the road. Your motor starts slower... seems sluggish. Gum forms faster.

New R-D-R Process insures
FRESHNESS in Gulf

Gulf's high-speed delivery system rushes fresh Gulf Gas to the pumps. And that gas stays fresh longer, due to Gulf's exclusive R-D-R process—a process that actually delays deterioration.

5 important facts about fresh gas

1. Fresh Gas starts faster than stale gas.
2. Fresh Gas gives you more power than stale gas.
3. Fresh Gas gives you more mileage.
4. Fresh Gas is higher in anti-knock rating than stale gas.
5. Fresh Gas is cleaner-burning—contains less motor fouling residue than stale gas.

Try a tankful of fresh Gulf gas.
No extra cost!

"Age has made these old suspenders weary," says the chemical engineer. "They've lost their liveliness. Something's gone out of them. Age does the same thing to gasoline. Age evaporates the 'light ends'—the lighter, livelier parts... the power elements." So it pays to get only FRESH Gulf gas.

Clear, Hot Weather Will Continue Today

Probably fair weather with a continuation of the 90-degree weather which has been Atlanta's lot for the last few days is the weather men for today, according to George Mindling, United States meteorologist.

Rain, which Tuesday reached northward from Kansas to the Canadian border, will not get this far south, it is the opinion of Mr. Mindling, and Atlanta will continue to swelter under hot skies. Tuesday's mercury range was from 68 to 90, and the same is predicted for today.

Distributor Explains "Protection" Feature

"All first-line tires carry the usual guarantee against defective materials or workmanship," stated Mr. H. H. Brooks, official of the Brooks-Shatterly Company, Atlanta tire distributors. "But," he explained, "only Seiberling tires are factory-protected for twelve to fifteen months against all road hazards of any name or nature."

"This simply means," continued this tire expert, "that the motorist who buys protected Seiberling tires is insured against loss should he injure his tires in any way during this period. Even if he ran over a broken bottle or railroad spike, any Seiberling dealer anywhere would repair the damaged tire free of charge or give him full allowance on the purchase of a new tire. The common tire 'guarantee' offers no such insurance. Should a guaranteed tire go bad, the car owner must take it to the dealer from whom he bought it for whatever adjustment the dealer sees fit to make. Any adjustment the dealer makes comes out of his own pocket, because his factory does not reimburse him."

"On the other hand," Mr. Brooks said, "Seiberling Tire Dealers are themselves protected against loss by the Seiberling factory when any accident injures a 'protected' Seiberling. Naturally he will do all he can to satisfy the customer and keep his good will, since it costs him nothing to do so. Seiberling tires are so well made that they defy hard wear and rough treatment. But, any tire may be cut or bruised and Seiberling owners are insured against loss from all such accidents, even including damage due to faulty brakes, misalignment of wheels or under-inflation. No other tire carries such broad 'protection.' This guarantees that the owner will receive all the mileage the factory has built into it. It's one reason why more Atlanta buyers Seiberling tires than any other tire."

The Brooks-Shatterly Company operates three modern tire and battery service stations in Atlanta. The downtown store is located at Spring and Walton streets, the West End store at Whitehall and Gordon streets and the Lakewood store at Lakewood avenue and Jonesboro road. (adv.)

and consumers, particularly for the Boston market.

The agreement which is aimed to include farmers, processors and distributors of fluid milk would be drawn in an effort to assure the producers a better return without a relative increase in costs to consumers.

The governors expressed the opinion that many economies could be effected in distribution and other costs by trade agreements which would eliminate costly competitive elements.

PEIPING'S CAPTURE BY JAPAN'S TROOPS EXPECTED HOURLY

ond division, and General Hsu Ting-yao, with his seventeenth division, were resisting stubbornly.

Hurrying back to the city, to the comparative safety of shelter within its walls, I found terror spreading. The rumble of the big guns and the steady drone of Japanese bombing planes shattered Chinese and foreign morale alike.

Rigid martial law maintained a semblance of order inside the city. Patrols marched along every street. The foreign section, where many Americans, British and others reside, was guarded by United States marines, British, Japanese, French and other forces stationed there.

United States Minister Nelson T. Johnson conferred with his colleagues, including the British and Japanese diplomats. Sir Miles Lampson, the British minister, was reported to have been approached by the Chinese to act as mediator, and effect the peaceful turnover to the Japanese.

Foreign defense forces were ordered ready for an emergency.

Reports of an armistice with the Japanese were denied emphatically by General Ho Ying-ching, war minister from Nanking, in command of the Chinese forces in the north. He issued an official communique confirming Japanese announcements that operations had been resumed on all fronts.

Troops were stationed outside Peiping, to the north and east, to cover evacuation of tens of thousands of irregular and other Chinese troops and refugees, streaming southward toward the Yellow river on General Ho's orders peacefully to turn over the city to the Japanese and save it from sack and ruin.

The Japanese heavily reinforced their legation guard, and heavy patrols were sent into the native Tartar city within the Peiping walls, where many Japanese civilians reside.

The Japanese sent a note to the commandants of their other foreign guards declaring they originally had planned to evacuate their nationals within the legation quarter for safety. However, it was explained, in order not to alarm foreigners generally who live in Peiping, they decided instead to send Japanese patrols into the Tartar city.

Their patrols were aided by a fleet of armored cars, which moved slowly along the street, machine gun barrels poking from within the heavy gray steel bodies.

Minister Johnson feared these heavy Japanese tanks would result in untoward incidents. He immediately conferred with Sir Miles, but their decision on what action, if any, to take was not announced.

Letters in Praise of Jinky.
After you have cut your designs, enter your Jinkys in the contest and you will be writing letters similar to these.

Jinky Editor:
I never thought that I could win a prize by cutting such a simple thing as a Jinky, but when I entered the contest I found out differently. I have had so much fun using my prizes.

EDWARD PROW,
2426 Boulevard Dr., N. E.
Jinky Editor:
Please accept many thanks for the theater tickets you have been so kind as to award me. I appreciate them very much. Mr. Sullivan has been unemployed so much for the past three years, we haven't been able to attend picture shows, and its a real treat to be able to see a good show. Again thanking you, I am, Respectfully,
(Mrs.) T. M. SULLIVAN.

Dear Jinky Editor:
Was surprised when I looked in Sunday's Constitution to find my name listed as a prize winner. I find that the Jinky contest is a very fascinating pastime, which I enjoy very much. I am working very hard for one of the grand prizes and especially the trip to Chicago. Of course I'm still working very hard for the weekly prizes.

And again I wish to express my appreciation for the prizes awarded me. I have enjoyed them very much.

Yours very truly,
(Miss) DOROTHY HUNT.

Don't delay. Every week there are 185 prizes to be given away. Don't wait. Join the thousands who are getting fun out of Jinkys. Forgetting troubles and worries, and the depression, Jinkys will make you smile. They will put money in your pocket. Visit Jinky headquarters today, and get a free Jinky receipt. I'll be seeing you. . . .

Bank Holdup Suspect Caught in Mississippi

Sheriff B. W. Adams, of Walker County, was returning to Fayetteville Tuesday night from Biloxi, Miss., with Jack Green, alias Jack Atkins, the fourth man wanted and the alleged leader of the gang that robbed the Farmers and Merchants Bank of Fayetteville of $1,600 on May 6. Green was arrested in Biloxi several days ago.

Green is a brother of Harry Green, who, with James Ricks and John B. Lunford, already is in Walker county jail awaiting trial. Officers said he confessed his part in the daring bank holdup to Biloxi officers and that the other three also have made confessions. Harry Green, officers said, had returned $140, all he had left from his share of the loot.

The four men, aided by a fifth, held H. C. Hewell, cashier of the bank, and his wife prisoners overnight and next morning two of them forced Hewell to open the vault while two others remained on guard at the Hewell home to prevent an alarm being sounded.

C. A. COBB ACCEPTS POST AS DIRECTOR OF COTTON PLANS

Peck has determined to work out a program for cotton as promptly "as possible" and that preparations have been laid to call a commodity conference within a few weeks.

Peck has made an inquiry into the amount of cotton on which the government has made loans which would be available for application of the Smith cotton option plan under the act. There is about 2,500,000 bales, including more than 700,000 which form security for crop production loans by the department of agriculture in the last three years.

It is understood that in preliminary drafting of a program for cotton use of the option plan exclusively is not contemplated for this year's crop. Instead, there is a tentative understanding that it will be combined with an acreage reduction program to be put into effect either through the leasing of lands already planted to cotton or through use of the voluntary domestic allotment plan. Delegations of growers have in-

Decision Is Withheld In Returning of Negro

BOSTON, May 23.—(AP)—The battle of George Crawford, 29-year-old negro accused of slaying two white women, to escape return for trial in Virginia, ended today with the federal court of appeals here.

At the end of a day given over entirely to consideration of whether the indictment of Crawford in Virginia was invalid on the ground custom barred negroes from service on the grand jury there, Judge George Bingham, presiding justice of the circuit court, announced decision would be reserved.

formed Peck they would approve any combination of plans which would assure two purposes, the reduction of acreages in order to reduce the large supply of cotton now on hand, and payments of cash benefits to growers for acreage reduction this summer.

Working out the exact provision of the program will be the first duty of Cobb, who said he believes the "southern farmer will be glad to co-operate in any program that is worked out for this year's crop."

Troops Keep Order In Amoskeag Strike

MANCHESTER, N. H., May 23.—New Hampshire national guardsmen tonight ruled the streets around the huge plant of the Amoskeag Manufacturing Company, textile manufacturers, whose 7,800 operatives are on strike.

The guardsmen, members of the 107th anti-aircraft regiment and numbering 250, took over the task of preserving order without the assistance of local police after both units had broken up a brief skirmish at the mill gates this morning. The police were assigned to duty in other sections of the city and in the shoe manufacturing districts, where 3,000 shoe workers also were on strike.

Eggs Given Away.

Eggs were given away free in a recent price-cutting war between two Crandon, Wis., merchants. The "war" started when one firm offered two dozens for 25 cents and continued until eggs went for one cent a dozen and finally for nothing.

Think how much you save on the purchase price alone!

"You certainly got a lot of car for the money!"

"Don't I know it! You can't match these features in any other car at that price."

"How much better a new car makes you feel!"

"And how easy Chevrolet has made it to get that feeling! Payments are no burden when a car costs so little as this one!"

"Oh-oh, I've stalled the engine. Quick, where's the starter button?"

"There isn't any. Just step on the gas as usual. The Starter-ator will take care of the rest."

"Don't let that low price fool you. This is a real quality car."

"You don't have to tell me that. I've owned Chevrolets for years."

"It's shorter to take that road. It's rough, but you won't mind it in your Chevrolet."

"Do you mean to say you get a Fisher body with No Draft Ventilation at that price? No wonder everyone I know is going in for Chevrolets."

"A new Chevrolet! I thought you were going to wait awhile."

"I figured I might as well start saving right away. And say, this Chevrolet is certainly a record-breaker for economy."

Action was reserved until Thursday, when additional witnesses will be heard.

INSTALLMENT XXXIII.

"It's a terrible thing!" Farman said, "to drag the Maiden name in the dust, but worse, indeed, to let murder take place without question or comment."

"Why are you so sure it is murder?" asked Morris, coldly.

The shrewd Farman, noticing the change in the manner of the district attorney, rose to the occasion.

"Given two people alone, and one dead from no apparent cause, what else can be surmised? Nor do we say murder has been committed; we only say the matter must be looked into."

"But are you prepared? Have you evidence, witnesses, testimony—in a word, are you ready to conduct a murder trial, if it comes to that?"

"We are ready, or can get ready for anything that means law and justice."

"Then go and get ready, and come back when you are all prepared." The district attorney had practically lost his temper. Between the pleas of Stone and the threats of Farman, he was more or less in a quandary. However, the authority or what seemed like it, given by Morris was just what Farman wanted, and he well knew how to twist the permission to his own ends. With an exaggerated speech of thanks he left, well pleased with his success.

That evening, Fleming Stone and his self-invited guest were earnestly talking over the immediate outlook.

"That Farman is a villain," declared Gaskell. "I can't see how the old lady stands having him around. For whatever she may be, she's nobody's fool."

"She is not," agreed Stone. "Nor is Farman a fool. I wish we could get Mrs. Maiden out of their clutches."

"She isn't exactly in their clutches, as I see it, but they're evidently out to make trouble for her."

"They can do that, unless—"

"Unless what?"

"Unless we find the real murderer."

"You never spoke a truer word. And, mind you, Stone, I have every confidence and faith in your powers. But I do wish we could hasten matters a bit. Now, don't think for a minute I'm impatient; I only want to see Perilla more at ease. The girl is worried to death, and it isn't surprising."

"Indeed it isn't; and nobody longs for progress more than I do. But it's coming, Gaskell; it's on the way."

"Really? Have you a glimpse of an idea of the criminal's identity?"

"Yes, I'm sure I can say yes to that. Now to pin it on him."

"I'm not telling?"

"I am telling as soon as I'm a little more certain on one point."

"What's that?"

"You have helped, old man. Mrs. Coles tells me you were fine to Bob, and did ever so much for him when he was anxious to get into the laboratory. Later, it seems, he changed his mind and wanted to a detective. Those kids never know what they want. But Mrs. Coles spoke most highly of your kindly interest."

"She's a dear little woman, and Bob was a fine chap. What about his death, now?"

"If you don't mind, we won't take that up tonight. I'm all in—me for bed. Plum, you want to set up some drinks?"

"Dying to, Mr. Stone," said his secretary. He rang for ice and glasses, and drew toward him a compact yet roomy cellaret, which he opened.

"What's yours, Mr. Gaskell?" he inquired.

"Just a Scotch highball, not too stiff."

"And yours as usual, Mr. Stone?"

"Yes," answered the detective absent-mindedly. "I say, Tony, do you know Simpson, the great toxicologist?"

"Never heard of him; who is he?" Gaskell was walking idly about the room, but paused to hear Stone's reply.

"He's not well known. An old man, but famous in his line."

"Really? I gather, from what you dubbed him."

"Yes. Famous among chemical experts."

"Just exactly that. I was wakened, and I thought I'd like to read that philosophy you were talking about."

"Schopenhauer? Yes, it is in my bedroom. I dip into it often when I can't sleep. Too bad. Why didn't you knock louder—or didn't you knock?"

"No, I didn't want to wake you. I tried the door and it wouldn't open, so I just gave it up."

"Continued Tomorrow."

Three Congress Candidates Give Platforms for Race

Harris, Brown and Mrs. Shivers Issue Statements as Tenth District Campaign Starts.

With seven announced candidates already in the race for congress to succeed the late Charles H. Brand, of the tenth district, and with others expected to make their formal announcements in the near future, a free-for-all race appeared inevitable between now and July 5, the date set for the election by Governor Eugene Talmadge.

Roy V. Harris, member of the Georgia legislature from Richmond county; Paul Brown, prominent Elberton lawyer, and Mrs. A. R. Shivers, of Warren county, on Tuesday issued statements regarding their candidacies and setting forth their platforms in detail. Other announced candidates are Representative J. L. Cartledge, of Richmond county; Miles Collier, of Madison county; Mayor D. Talmadge Bowers, of Canton.

A new name was added to the list of possible candidates when friends of Thomas J. Hamilton, veteran editor of the Augusta Chronicle, began a movement to persuade him to make the race. The list of possibilities also includes Dr. Andrew M. Soule, president of the State College of Agriculture at Athens, whose job was abolished with the merger of that institution into the State University; M. Pembroke Pope, of Washington, former Georgia governor of Kiwanis and prominent farmer; Abit Nix, of Athens, who was a candidate for governor in the last campaign; Hamilton McWhorter, president of the state senate; Walter McDonald, of Augusta, member of the Georgia public service commission; J. C. McAllister, of Augusta; Thomas J. Shackleford and Lamar Rucker, both of Athens; J. H. Skelton Jr., and Solicitor-General A. S. Skelton, of Hartwell; Orrin Robert, of Monroe, and State Senator J. T. Sisk, of Elberton.

Brown in Race.
ELBERTON, Ga., May 23.—Paul Brown, of Elberton, is a candidate to fill the unexpired term in congress of the late Charles H. Brand from the tenth district.

He was born and reared on a farm in Hart county. After graduating in law at the University of Georgia and being admitted to the bar, he practiced his profession for several years at Lexington and represented Oglethorpe county in the general assembly of Georgia. Later, he moved to Elberton and is now one of the leading lawyers of his city and section.

Mr. Brown is also interested in farming. He owns 3,000 acres of land in Elbert and adjacent counties and operates several farms. He is a delegate to the last democratic national convention and nominated Franklin D. Roosevelt, and has taken an interest in civic and political affairs. He is a man of great personal magnetism, broad and deep human sympathies, and so conducts himself as to command the esteem and confidence of even his opponents.

Harris' Platform.
Representative Harris, in his platform, draws attention to his long experience in the state assembly and pledges complete support of the national democratic platform and the Roosevelt program for recovery. His statement, in full, follows:

"It has been my privilege to have had nine years of service in the house of representatives in Atlanta and two years of service in the state senate. During this time I have had the pleasure of serving as chairman of the ways and means committee in the house, as vice chairman of the committee on rules, and floor leader of the senate under appointment from the late President W. Coolidge, and at the present time I have the privilege of being vice chairman of the committee on rules and floor leader in the house.

"Only two or three men in Georgia have had more legislative experience than I have had and I believe that I am by reason of this service in close touch with the pulse of the people of the tenth district.

"On last Saturday I announced that I would be a candidate to fill the unexpired term of the late Congressman Charles H. Brand and that I would issue a statement of the principles upon which I would base my candidacy as soon as the governor called the election.

"I have just been notified that the governor has fixed July 5 as the date for the election and I am submitting the following statement of the principles upon which I respectfully ask the support of every voter in the tenth congressional district, to-wit:

"1. Support of the democratic platform and the Roosevelt program for recovery.

"2. A controlled policy of currency inflation.

"3. The regulation of holding companies owning utility stock.

"4. Revamping of the interstate

Varied Entertainment For Bar Association

MACON, Ga., May 23.—(AP)—John B. Harris, secretary of the Georgia Bar Association, is seeing to it that the lawyers' annual convention at Sea Island Beach, June 1, 2 and 3, will not be all work and no play.

He has arranged a round of entertainments that include a golf match, the winner to receive a silver trophy; a shore dinner amid the sand dunes; a dance at the Sea Island Beach Yacht Club; horseback riding, fishing, hunting, bathing, boating, teas and bridge for the women and a banquet. The Hotel Clavier will be convention headquarters.

commerce commission as to remove it from the control of big business interests.

"5. Legislation prohibiting monopolies by limiting interlocking holding companies and directorates.

"6. Legislation restricting national banks to a proper banking business.

"7. Adequate care for the veterans of the World War wounded or disabled by reason of their service, and the widows and orphans of those who died in service or died since on account of disabilities connected with service.

"8. Recognizing that the prosperity of the people of Georgia depends upon the price of agricultural products I shall use every effort toward the increase of their price. I shall especially work toward increasing the price of cotton by promoting the discovery of new uses for cotton and the lowering of tariff walls so that countries desiring to do so may buy southern cotton.

"9. A general reduction of republican tariff walls in an effort to restore to the people of Georgia the economic warfare which has been taking place between the nations for the past generation.

"10. That any development of Muscle Shoals shall include the manufacture of cheaper fertilizer materials.

"11. That all interstate carriers be subject to the same regulations by the interstate commerce commission.

"12. To use every effort to promote peace among the nations by agreements limiting warfare and armaments, and in the absence of a proper guarantee of peace by other nations the building of an army and navy second to none.

"13. The development of the Savannah river valley to insure navigation up the river as far as possible, and promote its development along lines similar to those proposed by the president for the Tennessee valley.

"14. Advocate abolishing all useless jobs and bureaus in Washington.

"15. To oppose all efforts for the cancellation of European war debts.

"16. To work for the people of the tenth district every working day in the year and to strive to the best of my ability to be the servant of the people of the district."

(Signed) ROY V. HARRIS.

Mrs. Shivers in Race.
Mrs. Shivers, in a letter to The Constitution, announces her candidacy as follows:

"Editor Constitution: May the tenth congressional district have the privilege, yes, honor, of Georgia's first congresswoman?

"If the men will desist now, Georgia will soon have a congresswoman, a stateswoman, an anti-prohibitionist, doctor of economics, a farmer, a mother, a Roosevelt proponent, and I'm ashamed of this, but a 'defeated' legislative candidate last year. We've watched with profound sorrow and regret the outcome of the recent Georgia session, may God forbid that we 'raffle' over the post now to be filled: 'I say without any hesitancy that the principles for which I stand fit more perfectly into the Roosevelt program than those of the men who will likely enter the congressional race.'

"Our men are not without charity. I'm sure. We still have some Walter Raleighs! And yes, Augusta still has some men of the spirit of Archibald Alexander and yes, Tom Hardwick as Georgia governor, saw in Mrs. Felton a suitable Georgia senator.

"May the tenth district now have a woman, imbued with Jeffersonian principles, and one that tries to let the Christ-like spirit permeate her life, walk into congress and speak for the common people!

"Yours for honesty, economy, good government and prosperity."

NEGRO FOUND GUILTY OF COLEMAN MURDER

Stark To Die for Crime for Which Robert Coleman Served Time.

JONESBORO, Ga., May 23.—Jim Stark, negro, tonight was found guilty and sentenced to die for the murder of Mrs. Robert Coleman. The woman, who resided with her husband and child in Clayton county, near the Henry county line, was slain when an intruder entered their house at night. Her husband, Robert Coleman, was accused of the crime and sentenced to life imprisonment. He was recently released from the Fulton county chain gang after a confession by Stark had cleared him of the crime.

On the stand today the negro repudiated his confession, stating that he had been held a prisoner in Fulton county for several days and that he was frightened into making it. Several Fulton county officers testified as to the circumstances under which the confession was secured.

The trial opened Monday and the jury received the case late Tuesday afternoon, returning the verdict of guilty of first-degree murder about 10 o'clock Tuesday night.

State witnesses at the trial, in addition to the officers, were practically the same as those who testified at the trial of Robert Coleman.

The negro also tried to establish an alibi. He was defended by three prominent attorneys appointed by the court, O. J. Coogler and J. E. Mundy, of Jonesboro, and C. T. Hudgens, of Decatur. Claude Smith, solicitor, was assisted in the prosecution by Lawrence Camp.

Cox Delays Action On Industry Bill

WASHINGTON, May 23.—(AP)—The well-set plan of democratic leaders for immediate house action on the public works-industrial control tax bill were upset today by an uprising in the house rules committee, thereby delaying floor consideration until Thursday at least.

Representative Cox, a Georgia democrat, objected so strenuously to the proposed rules committee plan to floor the bill on Thursday that the committee postponed a vote on the opponent-styled "gas" rule until tomorrow.

Meanwhile, predictions came from democratic leaders that little difficulty would be had in gaining house approval either of the projected measure to continue until 1935 the levies on the billion-dollar tax bill or the plan to increase income taxes, boost the gasoline levy and subject stock dividends to income tax rates.

She is survived by her father, W. J. Hix, of Fort Deposit, Ala.; and two brothers, John and Evan Hix, of Montgomery, Ala. Funeral services will be held in Montgomery.

S. S. Savannah Model To Be Given Roosevelt

SAVANNAH, Ga., May 23.—(AP)—A miniature reproduction of the S. S. Savannah, first steamboat to cross the Atlantic, will be presented President Roosevelt by the Georgia bicentennial commission in cooperation with the American Steamship Owners' Association of New York.

It was the president's proclamation that designated May 22 as National Maritime Day in commemoration of the Savannah leaving here for Liverpool, England, on that date in 1819.

The reproduction was displayed here last night at a civic banquet in celebration of the 144th anniversary of the voyage. Decision to give it to the president took into consideration his love for nautical things.

Included in the list of graduates were six cavalry officers, three field artillery officers, two chemical warfare officers, five officers of the marine corps, three officers of the Cuban army and one Chinese army officer.

The school closed this year three weeks in advance of the usual date due to economy measures of the Roosevelt administration. Graduates are leaving today for assignments in all parts of the world.

General Campbell King, commandant, who is soon to retire from active duty, presided at the exercises and delivered the principal address.

GEORGIA IS BELOW NATION'S AVERAGE IN QUARRY DEATHS

WASHINGTON, May 23.—Georgia was one of 11 states in the Union to establish better fatality and insurance rates in her quarries during the year 1931 average for the country as a whole, Director Scott Turner of the bureau of mines, reported today.

The bureau has prepared final figures for quarry accidents which show the relative standing of states according to their accident-frequency rates per million man hours of exposure.

The other states which won the double honor of establishing both fatality and injury rates were Illinois, Texas, New Jersey, Indiana, Ohio, Missouri, Virginia, Vermont, Maine and Kentucky.

Help on Way, Crackers Open Here Today With Lookouts

SOON THERE'LL TRAP SHOOTERS BEGIN ARRIVING HERE

Cuscaden, Johnson, Other Stars on Hand; More Expected Today.

By Ralph McGill.

Shooters entered in the annual southern championship trapshoot scheduled for the Capital Gun Club on Thursday, Friday and Saturday of this week, began arriving in Atlanta yesterday.

Others are expected today in time to have the entire list of entries out for the practice shoot scheduled for this afternoon at the club. Arrivals of yesterday were: J. W. Collins, of Dayton, Ohio, manager of the American Trapshoot Association; Arthur Cuscaden, well known Tampa professional; R. I. Pether, of Easton, Fla.; Mr. and Mrs. E. Bishop, of Bradenton, Fla.; Harry Johnson, one of the best-known amateur shots and a resident of Haysville, Kan.; J. E. McKibben, of Orlando, and John Kress, of Knoxville.

CLASS CHAMPIONSHIP.

The shoot this year is a class championship shoot, a unique arrangement in that it provides an equal opportunity for every participant and does not force him into competition with shooters with which he has no chance.

The three classes, A, B and C, are determined by the average compiled by the shooter. Those in Class A are those with an average of 94 or better, those in Class B from 90 to 94 and those in Class C below 90.

The singles shooting this year is over 500 targets instead of the usual 400. Two hundred and fifty targets are to be fired at on each of the first two days. The 500 targets will be registered in each class.

SOUTHERN HANDICAP.

On Saturday the southern handicap shoot of 200 targets will be fired. The classes in this shoot are: Class A, 21 to 25; Class B, 16 to 20; Class C, 11 to 15. Atlanta's unusually good list of shooters will participate. Homer Freeman, "the shooting cop," and a former champion; John and C. W. Tway, L. E. Grant, J. K. Orr, Benson Freeman and others will compete as will shooters from numerous cities in Georgia.

It is expected to be the best shoot in some years.

COBB EXAMPLE FOR BATSMEN

NEW YORK, May 23.—(P)—Moping his round face with a Turkish towel, Babe Ruth turned to Manager Joe McCarthy and sat on the bench before today's game with Cleveland and remarked:

"I feel like I ought to bust one today and get around those bases. Joe, I'm over here."

Whereupon the great man strode to the plate in the first inning and, with the count three and two, "busted one" right into the right field bleachers. The Babe's first home since April 30, ending the longest drought he has experienced while with the Yankees, simultaneously putting an abrupt end to talk about Ruth's eyes going back on him in the 20th major league campaign.

"That's a lot of bunk," the Babe remarked himself upon hearing reports he was becoming astigmatic. Across the field, when the same subject was mentioned, Billy Evans, general manager of the Cleveland club, added: "That's nothing for the Babe to worry about. You know, Ty Cobb for years had pronounced astigmatism of one eye, but he hit around 400 just the same. Maybe he would have hit .500 if he had been aided by two sound eyes, instead of one."

Speaking about Cobb reminded Evans of one reason why most big batsmen, especially this spring, have been failing to show consistency. "They don't carry enough threat up to the plate," said the Cleveland executive. "Most players, now are just straight-away hitters, whereas a fellow like Cobb would carry an opposing infield to death, trying to figure where and when he would hit. Then just when they thought they had Ty figured out, he would punch one through a hole or over an infielder's head."

"There isn't anybody with Cobb's all-around hitting ability in the American league now. Ruth when he was younger and could mix 'em up, up at bat, Ben Chapman is the nearest approach to Cobb, on the bases, that I have seen in years, and he is developing as an all-around batter, too."

As a whole, however, the Yanks do not seem quite so formidable this year to Evans, who has high hopes Cleveland will find the batting power to support its pitching and figure in a much closer race for the pennant.

"The Yankees," said Evans, "are feeling some of the shrinkage that comes to an aging championship club, while the rest of the league is better balanced, but the world champions are still the toughest outfit in baseball."

Cartersville Boy Is Expert Rifleman

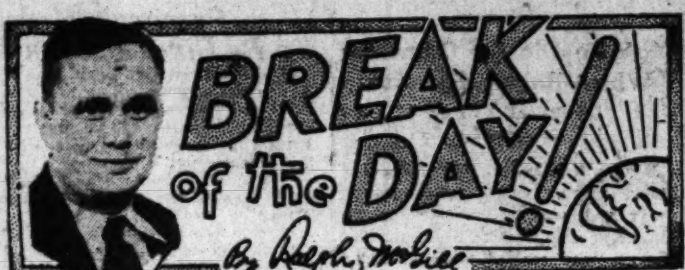

WASHINGTON, D. C., May 23.—(P)—Enlisted Dargan Cole, Cartersville, Ga., has qualified as an expert rifleman in the junior division of the National Rifle Association, it was announced here today. The only grade higher than expert is distinguished rifleman.

Cole is a member of the rifle club of the Culver Military Academy, Culver, Ind., and won his qualification medal under the instruction of Captain H. W. Obenau.

So far this year 9,985 junior shooters of the country have qualified in all grades of shooting proficiency from the beginning grade of pro-marksman to the top grade of distinguished rifleman. Of this number only 37 have succeeded in attaining the distinguished rating and 137 the expert rating.

Art Shires Loses Court Decision

MILWAUKEE, May 23.—(P)—Arthur Shires, central figure of many baseball and a few ring battles, took the count to the extent of $119.33 in the court of Civil Judge Joseph Cordes today. Judge Cordes ruled that Shires owed that much to William H. Timlin, his former attorney. Timlin said the amount was due him for defending Shires in a breach of contract suit. Shires failed to appear in court and the judgment was ordered entered.

"I Don't Want To Be Hugged By You," New Mat Ballard

"It begins to feel as if there were red-hot irons cutting into your back and ribs," said the big fellow, as he lay sprawled back in a chair, 250 pounds of beef in repose.

"And then the fire seems to go up your sides and begins to burn in the back of your neck and head," he said.

"I can honestly say that when he gets that hold on a man as he had it on me he will really win that fall. Why, he picked me up tonight a dozen times and tossed me aside as if I were a kid."

"I didn't think I should have lost that second fall. But I lost the third one. I believe I can beat him but he fooled me tonight. He wasn't any more tired than I at the end."

It was George Zaharias talking. The big "crying man" whom the wrestling fans go to see defeated, had just lost to Milo Steinborn, a former champion strong man, before some 4,000 fans at the auditorium.

The bear hug is a simple hold. Steinborn grabs his opponent about the body. He gradually works his arms downward, lifting the opponent, until the compressed arms are about the lower ribs. By this time the opponent is off the mat with his own weight pulling and helping increase the pressure.

Wrestling fans thronged about the ring last night to see the fallen foe. Small kids stood about trying holds on one another.

The ladies composed about half the crowd. They wanted to see the arms that were strong enough to crush a big fellow such as Zaharias.

"Gee," giggled one young thing, "wouldn't you HATE to have him for a date and have him HUG YOU?"

LENGLEN TO RETURN.

It is an interesting story that comes out of La Belle France—Mlle. Suzanne Lenglen is coming back to the tennis courts as an amateur.

The greatest woman tennis player the game ever knew has been working for weeks, seeing if those flashing legs are good enough to carry her along in that flame-like game that was hers.

She has been working out with men players at the Racing Club of Paris. Reports have it that she is a bit thinner than before but that in losing weight she has lost none of her old skill.

Let's see. It's been almost a decade since she quit amateur tennis, harkening to the financial blandishments of C. C. (Cold Cash) Pyle, the entrepreneur who was luring a great many of the great athletes to the professional standard.

There wasn't as much money in it as Mlle. Lenglen thought. Since then she has played but little tennis. She is eligible for reinstatement as an amateur when she makes the request. And the tennis federation would fall over itself to grant the request. They know what crowds La Lenglen would draw.

Helen Wills Moody, who as Helen Wills was defeated with ease in 1926, is to compete in Europe this year. So is Helen Jacobs, who does not care a great deal for her California rival.

One wonders about La Lenglen. It is an old axiom of sport that they never come back. So far as I recall this will be the first time that a woman champion has tried to make a comeback. One wonders if the legs and the fine co-ordination are still there. Big Bill Tilden, who was of her era, is about in retirement.

Should La Lenglen come back and defeat Helen Wills Moody for the tennis championship at Wimbledon it would rank as one of the greatest dramas in all the long history of sport.

THOSE PESKY VOLs.

So far as the martin box ball park in Nashville is concerned those Crackers are just birds in a gilded cage. Once the Vols get them in there they shut the door. The Crackers do considerable flitting about but when day is done and shadows fall they have got nowhere at all.

The Crackers dropped the second straight game there yesterday. In five games the Crackers haven't been able to come any closer to beating the Vols than Broker's Tip was to Head Play in the Preckness, a matter of 27 lengths.

On April 16 the Crackers took a sound 11-to-3 beating in Nashville.

To be perfectly frank, it is very apparent that it does not really matter what park the teams are in. The Nashville miniature baseball course offers a swell alibi. But the unsympathetic records show that on May 12 the Vols kicked the Crackers, 5 to 3, at Atlanta and on May 13 won, 19 to 2, in what was a sordid travesty on our national game.

And now the Crackers have completed a two-day stand in Nashville. They proved that they could lose beneath the stars or beneath the sun. Since the Monday night game was the first night game for both teams there was no chance for any unusual handicap to apply.

The Crackers have twice mounted to the doorstep of the first division. Twice have they been about to turn the knob and step into the parlor. And each time the Vols have applied the old boot, kicking the Crackers back into the cellar.

The club comes home today, finally rid of the Vols, and will take up matters with the Chattanooga club. The Crackers have the ball club. They should be able to massacre the slipping Lookouts. Skipper Bertram Niehoff has been trying in vain to sand the chute.

The following letter, received yesterday by this department, needs no comment. Other than to hope that it can be answered by someone:

Davisboro, Georgia, May 23, 1933.

Mr. Ralph McGill, Sports Editor of Atlanta Constitution, Atlanta, Georgia.

Dear Mr. McGill: I would appreciate very much if you would through your column, "Break of the Day," assist me in my difficulty.

I had the misfortune of having my left leg amputated a few months ago and therefore cannot use the left shoe. I would like to get in touch with some one who can use these extra shoes and exchange them for shoes for the right foot. If I can find some one who does not use the right shoe, and I do not use the left one, we can exchange them and it will be a big saving to the both of us. I wear a No. 7 1/2 shoe. I am sorry that I am not able to buy advertising space in The Constitution and hope that you will be in position to help me in this matter, as I assure you that it will be highly appreciated.

With best wishes, I am Very truly, W. E. MAYE.

GROVE GIVES TWO HITS, JIMMY HITS HOME RUN. 8-6 VICTORY

Lefty Gives Two Hits, Jimmy Hits Home Run.

PHILADELPHIA, May 23.—(P)—Featured by Lefty Grove's appearance in his third consecutive game and Jimmy Fox's seventh home run, the Philadelphia Athletics won their fifth straight game today, hammering two St. Louis Browns pitchers for 12 hits and an 8-to-6 victory.

Grove, twirling two-hit ball for his three-inning stay on the mound after Hank McDonald left at the end of the sixth, was credited with his third straight victory. Each game while the lucky portside was in a relief role Saturday against the Cleveland Indians and yesterday and today against the Browns.

The game saw-seawed back and forth as the big bats of first one team, then the other, swung into action.

The Browns nicked the scoring column first, Bruce Campbell's first double bringing both teams into the opening inning, but the A's registered a pair of runs in the fourth to go out in front. Roy Mahaffey, who started on the bases, hitting Dick Coffman from the mound. He was replaced by Sam Gray. The A's jumped into their 8-to-6 margin in the sixth.

Johnnie's single, scoring Campbell and Finck-Hitter Lou Finney. The game was late getting started after umpire Owens was slightly injured by a foul tip just following the "play ball" signal.

LIMIT ON OIL IN 500-MILE RACE IS ANNOUNCED

Drivers Gloomy as President Limits Each to Six Gallons.

INDIANAPOLIS, May 25.—(AP)—Gloom invaded some garages at the Indianapolis motor speedway today when E. V. Rickenbacker, president of the track, informed drivers that the new rule limiting cars to six gallons of oil in the 500-mile automobile race next Tuesday will not be modified.

Some of the speedsters have consumed alarming amounts of oil in the practice runs and in the qualifying tests that began last Saturday.

In past races here some of the cars have used up to 40 gallons of oil in 500 miles. Decision to put on a six-gallon limit was made by the officials for two reasons: To eliminate oil

Gasoline mileage tests also have added to the ordeals of drivers and mechanics this spring. With the size of the fuel tank limited to 15 gallons, mileage has become an important factor. Most of the drivers hope to make no more than three pit stops

If speed made in the qualifying trials to date means anything in so far as the race itself is concerned, there is a good chance for the record of 104.144 miles an hour made by Fred Frame last year to be bettered.

Six drivers have bettered the top speed made in last year's qualifying runs, when Lou Moore, of Los Angeles, won the pole position with 117,363 miles an hour. Wild Bill Cummings, of Indianapolis, with 118,521, will have that post this year.

THOMASVILLE, Ga., May 23.—Now that Thomasville's amateur team is organized and playing baseball, and other effort is being made to organize a new baseball loop in which the other members would be Tallahassee, Monticello and Perry, Fla., and meetings are being held in the interested cities with a view to working out details for the organization of an amateur league consisting of these four cities.

Many Retired Methodist Ministers Given Liquor, W. C. T. U. Is Told

LOS ANGELES, May 23.—(AP)—A meeting of dry leaders, including Methodist ministers and members of the W. C. T. U., was thrown into an uproar today as the youthful Dr. Kenneth W. Taber, former chief police surgeon of Pasadena, calmly told his listeners he had administered whisky to retired Methodist ministers and that they had "thrived on it and lived longer."

In spite of hisses and shouts of protest, Dr. Taber held his ground and demanded he be allowed to finish his talk.

"He needs to go back to school to learn more medicine," shouted a woman in the audience.

An aged man stood and, pounding with his cane, shouted: "I'm 84 years old and I've never taken a drop in all my life."

"You're an exception to the rule," Dr. Taber replied.

"Doctor, doctor—" shouted a man in the rear of the meeting hall, demanding recognition.

"See here," cut in Dr. Taber, "I'm here unwillingly, to tell the facts. I'm here as a guest. I don't propose to stand up here and be fired away at as a target."

The questions continued, however. "Isn't it true, doctor," asked a W. C. T. U. member, "that liquor is a poison?"

"So is food when taken immoderately," Taber answered. "Most people dig their graves with their knives and forks."

"Isn't it true," asked another person, "that they have abandoned the use of whisky at the Philadelphia Memorial hospital?"

"That's too far away from here. I know they haven't abandoned whisky at the Methodist hospital in Los Angeles."

Women May Get Jobs With Assistance of U. S.

WASHINGTON, May 23.—(AP)—Establishment of camps where jobless women may work in nurseries as unemployed men now do in the forests was suggested today by Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt as an aid to employment.

She said at her press conference she thought such a plan "might be quite practical."

Mrs. Roosevelt said she asked her husband if some of the forestry funds could go to women if there was any demand. His answer was, she added, that he saw no reason why not, if enough women wanted it.
